Remote working has become increasingly common in recent years, thanks to advancements in technology. Some employees appreciate the flexibility, as they can balance family commitments and work responsibilities more effectively. They also save time and money by avoiding a long commute. However, not everyone benefits equally from remote work. For instance, individuals who thrive on face-to-face interaction can feel isolated, and collaboration may suffer if team members are scattered across different locations. Moreover, maintaining a clear separation between work and personal life can be challenging when the home doubles as an office. While some companies have tried hybrid models, combining both remote and on-site days, the success of such arrangements varies. Ultimately, whether remote working is more efficient depends on factors like job nature, employee personality, and the level of support provided by employers. Those who enjoy independence may find it liberating, while others could struggle with loneliness and distractions.

Question 28: What is one advantage of remote working mentioned in the passage?

- A. Increased transportation costs
- B. Greater face-to-face interaction
- C. Improved collaboration in all cases
- D. Saving time and money on commuting

Question 29: According to the passage, which group may find remote work more challenging?

- A. People who dislike face-to-face interaction
- B. Individuals who thrive on in-person communication
- C. Employees with independent personalities
- D. Employers that provide minimal support

Question 30: Which statement is TRUE about hybrid work models?

- A. They involve part-time remote work and part-time on-site work.
- B. They force employees to live near their offices.
- C. They never succeed in any company.
- D. They are only suitable for very large corporations.

Question 31: Why might some people find it difficult to separate work from personal life when working remotely?

- A. Their employers require them to work 24 hours a day.
- B. They have limited technology to use at home.
- C. Their homes and offices are the same physical space.
- D. They must travel far to attend in-person meetings.

Question 32: The author's viewpoint on remote working can best be described as _____.
