SAFETY AT HOME

Accidents can happen even in familiar settings like your own home. To reduce risks, you should keep your living space organized and free of clutter. For instance, avoid leaving toys or shoes on the floor where people can trip over them. In the kitchen, always ensure that knives and cleaning products are stored out of children’s reach. It’s also helpful to install smoke detectors and check them regularly. Doing so can save lives in case of fires. Furthermore, elderly family members may need additional support, such as handrails in the bathroom to prevent falls. By being mindful and taking these simple measures, you can make your home a much safer place.

SAVING WATER

Water is a precious resource, but many people take it for granted. Simple habits like turning off the tap while brushing your teeth can save liters of water each day. Also, fixing leaking pipes promptly helps prevent wastage. In agriculture, using modern irrigation methods instead of flooding fields can significantly reduce water consumption. Some communities have also implemented water recycling systems, ensuring that water used once can be treated and used again. By protecting and managing water wisely, we can support both human needs and the environment for future generations.

29. According to the passage, how can brushing teeth waste water if we're not careful?

→
